Chris, I still can't believe it.. we had just talked not long ago, after many years of silence, which I understood why.. Man, talking about good ole days brought back some great memories, some of our adventures might've not have been using the best of judgement, but we survived them and thank goodness we did. You are one of my oldest guy friends and I just assumed we would be rolling around nursing home talking about many many more adventures that we had found ourselves in, but God had other plans for you. You are in a better place, but it doesn't take away the pain of not ever hearing your voice again and you never came by to let me see that face in person like I asked since returning to your mom n dad's, but I'm not mad about it, just sad it won't happen now. But we shall meet again, and believe me we will pick it up where we left off at. I love ya and you are and will always be missed. You are one of a kind guy, sweet funny and my homeboy from WAY WAY back. I love ya kid and RIP CHRIS, RIP my Boy
