My biggest fear became my biggest reality when I received the phone call that you had passed. Your love & devotion to our family was unquestionably the greatest gift. The time has come to set you free to your Master who once shared you with me. I would give anything to have another talk with you, another walk by your side, another hug, another kiss, another laugh, another silly face smile. You were & still are the BEST dad any little girl could ever have. Thank you for being a part of me and all you have taught me. You're my hero, my friend, my idol, MY DAD!

Well Pops the time has come for you to part ways and go to that place you always talked about "Heaven" I looked up to you as a Father figure. I enjoyed all our conversations. Pops you always would lift up my spirits when I was down. I will never forget all the good times we had together. I know Heaven will be full of laughter having you there. The memories you left me with will never be forgotten. I will treasure those memories forever. I'm gonna miss you Pops!
