There are so many memories....1st one that comes to mind is when we met for the first ultrasound to see if we were having a boy or girl! As we waited with anticipation, we started getting nervous because they weren't telling us anything . Finally they showed us the screen with a picture that took us a second to figure out ..Infact we had to be told what we were seeing.. 2 little heads laying side by side. Twins!! We were so blessed.. A boy and a girl! We walk out of there completely dazed.....couldn't find our car in the parking lot. Seems like yesterday. We had some wonderful times and some really rough ones. He will be missed! Regardless of what happened between us....love always, Sherri

He was a wonderful man, we used to go see him and hang out with him and he would stop by our house to say hey which is about a mile away from where he lived . Every time he would pass our house on his motorcycle he would always wave if he saw us out. Me myself (Corey) I remember when I was a kid me and my dad would stop by to see him, I always looked up to him & thought he was the incredible hulk because he was so strong. He was a cool dude, we will all miss him so much
